

Workshop on Gender, Water and Agriculture

8 Sep, 2017

New Delhi

Co-organized by SaciWATERS

ACIAR

Session 1

- ❑ Dealt with the way gender is conceived in the EGP
- ❑ Framework of both space and time crucial to analyzing gender relations
- ❑ Common geography, plural histories give rise to complex gender relations

ACIAR

Session 2

- ❑ Focused on research gaps

- ❑ Conclusions:

- Interrelated themes of feminization, migration and mechanization need to be explored further
- Studies based on macro and micro contexts need to be brought together
- Need to develop common language to converse with policy makers
- Mixed methods studies for nuanced understanding

ACIAR

Session 3

- ❑ Best Practices
- ❑ Case studies from Bangladesh, India and Nepal
- ❑ Questions remain:
 - Can examples from one region work in different context in the same region
 - Can examples from outside the region work for the region?

ACIAR

Session 4

- ❑ Platform for gender, water & agriculture – website
- ❑ Commitment from members
- ❑ Managed and hosted by
SaciWATERs:
 - Connecting to other foras
 - Hosting relevant work
 - Blogs
 - Photostories

How the workshop added value

- ❑ Engaged with interconnected themes – not connected frequently
- ❑ Brought together group of experts – academia, civil society organizations
- ❑ Laid foundation of a platform around the three interconnected themes
